

WHAT?

DOT Residency is a residency program organized by Open City Design Institute that focuses on spatial installation. Artists are invited to spend nine weeks to generate an installation that discusses the city's capacities and nuances, in a space defined by DOT at the time of the residency. Typically this nine-week residency is divided into three three-week sections: research, production and engagement. This division will vary from project to project, however, as a spatial engagement program, the entire 9 weeks will be considered as a public project and will be open to varying degrees of public engagements. The residency aligns itself with the OCDI ideology: the city is a campus for learning, practice, and production.

WHERE?

The first iteration of DOT is located within the Mitchell-Copp Facade, at 315 Portage Avenue, Winnipeg, Canada. The space is a 9' diameter and 11' high cylindrical space. This is the primary node of DOT, however DOT will engage other unused or forgotten urban spaces within the city. Please inquire about possibilities of different spaces.

HOW?

DOT is always accepting applications for the residency. If you are interested in learning more or seeking application please inquire by email to DOT@OCDI.INFO.

DOT NET

DOT is interested in building a network of artists, friends, and supporters through its residency program. All residency artists will become a part of DOT NET, creating a pool for dialogue and support. During the residency DOT will work actively to broaden the NET to connect with local artists, friends, supporters and institutions.

ADMINISTRATIVE SUPPORT

DOT will provide administrative supports in relation to the residency, including funding applications and communications with local resources, institutions and people.

PUBLICATION & MEDIA

OCDI and DOT will promote and disseminate all residency projects through various media platforms, including social media and seasonal publications.

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

DOT will provide technical assistance towards the project and the artist, as required and when possible, including labour in production, installation, and local resource errands.

HUB

The HUB: Artists are welcomed to use MAKE Coffee and Stuff as an office + social hub during their residency. Access to wifi, 8 x11 printing, and other supports will be available at the HUB.

DOT

DOT (discovering oblivious territories) is a gallery program of OCDI that engages the oblivious territories within the city with temporary programs of art and design.

OCDI

OPEN CITY DESIGN INSTITUTE is an independent non-profit program of STUFF engaging the city through public programs, exhibitions, competitions, publications, research, learning and practice.
